

MASARYK UNIVERSITY
FACULTY OF ARTS
DEPARTMENT FOR THE STUDY OF RELIGIONS

Call for applications: Ph.D. study of religious dissent and its repression in medieval Christianity

I am in search of motivated students from all over the world who are interested in dissident movements in medieval Christianity and/or their conceptualization and repression and who would like to pursue their studies in order to obtain a Ph.D. degree in the Study of Religions.

What my department can offer:

- A four-year Ph.D. programme in English, awarded with an internationally recognized Ph.D. degree.
- Dedicated individual supervision contributing to the success of your studies and maximizing your opportunities in the job market.
- The infrastructure of a well-established department connected to many different professional networks.
- A scholarship of 7,000 CZK net per month, which would cover approximately 50 % of monthly living expenses in Brno (if you live in a private flat). You receive this scholarship automatically in our full-time Ph.D. programme.
- An excellent location in the heart of Europe. The city of Brno, Czech Republic, is a pleasant, safe and vibrant place to live, living expenses are very reasonable, and the city is only at two hours from Vienna (Austria) and two-and-a-half hours from Prague (Czech Republic).
- One of the finest book collections worldwide focused on heresy in Europe and the inquisition.
- A minimum of 400 € per year for books of your choice, plus travel grants covering the costs of participation at conferences.
- A dedicated team of students, both undergraduate and graduate, working on related topics.

What we expect:

- An M.A. degree or equivalent in the study of religions, history, cultural history, paleography, anthropology, sociology, cultural studies, or a related field.

- Fair English-language writing skills and fluency in the major languages of the sources and literature relevant to your field.
- Some awareness of the state of research in your field of interest.
- Dedication to the topic.

Topics for doctoral projects

I am happy to consider preliminary proposals for research projects in any relevant area and based on any approach or method. I have been working mostly on Catharism, Waldensianism, individual religiosity, inquisitional records, and anti-heretical writing. In my emerging team, I would like to transcend the division between Western and Eastern Christianity. Therefore, projects on religious dissent in Slavic and Greek language areas are just as welcome as projects from the area of Latin Christianity, a field in which I have predominantly been working myself.

I am especially interested in supervising doctoral projects based on social scientific research into dissident movements and into discourses on heresy, on historical anthropology, on the constitution of historical databases, on the methods of digital humanities. However, I am also interested in supervising doctoral projects on more traditional historical approaches and questions, including but not limited to critical editions of sources.

Practicalities

The deadlines for Ph.D. applications are the 30 April (for studies beginning in mid-September) and the 30 November (for studies beginning in mid-February).

More information on how to apply can be found at <http://www.phil.muni.cz/relig/phd.php>, more information about the department at <http://www.phil.muni.cz/relig/indexen.php> and <http://www.phil.muni.cz/relig/flyer.pdf>, and more information about myself at <http://www.david-zbiral.cz>.
